YESTERDAY'S ACTIONS.

The visiting chiefs 'took in' the skitts yesterday. There was no pre-concerted action however, all going as they pleased. Some went to Garfield and some to Saltair. The post was a favorice spot and many of the fire figurers and their families took in the concert at the fort. The officers made matters pleasant for all was came there and the control of t ters pleasant for all wao came there and many indeed were the words of satisfaction indulged in by the visitors, Calder's was visited by many, while Liberty Purk came in for a share of attention. The joint building was inspected and the interior decorations of Utah onex were favorably commented upon. Not a few attended the services at the tabernacle, and the expressions of delight at the music of the choir and the great organ were numerous.

On January II, 1896, at Kansas City, Chief Hale tested this protector thoroughly. The Kansas City Star of that date says a house was picked out which had a cellar underneath, with no are not slow in expressing themselves as to its beauty. "We never dreamed that you had such a lovely city," is a frequent expression often indulged in. The ladies especially are entinusated over the prospect. Numbers of them engaged in mountain climbins last even entered the sacred precincts of the fact. In the next issue, a correction was made, the paper stating that Mr Anderson said the silver advocates should be "shouted down," instead of "shot down," and attributing the mistake to a typographical error.

SECURE AGAINST SMOKE. By far the most interesting piece of

THE SMOKE PROTECTOR.

This protector consists of a helmet which is proof against smoke fire, gases or bad air. It consists of a well-formed helmet, which is placed over the head and face, constructed of a special asbestos tanned leather, or asbestos cloth. This helmet sets down close on the shoulders and is held in place by two straps under the arms. The fireman is supplied with air by a scientifically constructed metal reservoir at the back of the helmet, with a capacity of 100 supplied with air by a scientifically constructed metal reservoir at the back of the helmet, with a capacity of 100 pounds pressure of compressed air, always rendered pure by a certain material used for the purpose. The amount of air in store is indicated by a guage attached to the reservoir, which, by the way, can be filled in fifteen seconds, and which retains the same pressure of pure air for months, thus rendering the helmet always ready for use. There is enough air in the reservoir to last for an hour or more. The fresh air inside forces the smoke and gases out. There are two "look outs" and a horn, which is used for signaling. The top is so constructed as to provide a protection from falling debris.

The inventor spent ten years in perfecting this device and now claims to have it completed to his satisfaction.

On January II, 1896, at Kansas City, Chief Hale tested this protector theroughly. The Kansas City Star of that date says a house was picked out which had a cellar underneath, with no description from falling debris.

The latest amusement novelty in New York and Boston is the phanta-scope, which is somewhat like the vi-tascope, a practical enlargement and projection upon a screen of the work ders of the kinetoscope. Years have been spent in endeavoring to accompilsh this, but the phantascope is said to be the first perfectly satisfactory apparatus that has been invented, and the results it accomplishes are said to be startling in the extreme. By its aid any scene, even though involving the most burleses movements can ing the most intricate movements, can ing the most intricate movements, can be fastifully reproduced on canvas. The best features of a whole season's amusement can be brought before the eye of the spectntor, and enjoyed as thoroughly as though he were actually witnessing the performance. What will he do? He will have his managers prepare everything for the campaign. He will endeavor to keep control of the convention and to nominate a state ticket. Then at the proper moment, when all have forgotten his anti-silver speeches and are prepared for conversion, he will make another memorable speech, in which he will declare that he is a Democrat.

Does anyone imagine for an instant that Hill will go with Whitney, Cleveland, Lamont, Fairchild and especially Everett P. Wheeler, who ran for governor on the ticket of the state Democracy when Hill was the regular nominee of the Democratic party? Is it not more likely that Senator Hill will smile gladly because he is rid of his old enemies and can fasten upon them forever the designation of bolters? Moreover, is it not likely that Senator Hill would be glad to be in accord with a Democratic national administration? He will not bolt.
